DETAILED ACTION

Priority

1. Receipt is acknowledged of papers submitted under 35 U.S.C. 119(a)-(d), which papers have been placed of record in the file.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

2. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

3. This application currently names joint inventors. In considering patentability of the claims under 35 U.S.C. 103(a), the examiner presumes that the subject matter of the various claims was commonly owned at the time any inventions covered therein were made absent any evidence to the contrary. Applicant is advised of the obligation under 37 CFR 1.56 to point out the inventor and invention dates of each claim that was not commonly owned at the time a later invention was made in order for the examiner to consider the applicability of 35 U.S.C. 103(c) and potential 35 U.S.C. 102(e), (f) or (g) prior art under 35 U.S.C. 103(a).

4. Claims 1-8 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Matsunaga et al. P.N. 5,951,474 (Matsunaga) in view of Hajnal et al. P.N. 6,396,269 (Hajnal).

Matsunaga discloses a RF coil system for MRI in a vertical field. The coil system "sandwiches" the anatomy to be imaged between at least two butterfly coils that are arranged with their planes parallel to the direction of the main magnetic field. See for example Fig. 1 and 9 and their corresponding description. The butterfly coils are combined with loop coils for quadrature detection. The only difference between the claims at issue and the prior art as represented by Matsunaga, is that Matsunaga does not specifically use sub-sampling in image acquisition. This difference however, would have been obvious to the artisan of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made. Sub- sampling in image acquisition for MRI, is routine in parallel image acquisition methods such as "SENSE", which offer greatly reduced acquisition times. See the entire teachings of Hajnal. To use this image acquisition scheme, with the coil system of Matsunaga would have been found advantageous by the artisan of ordinary skill in the art and result in the instant invention. Note that Matsunaga, clearly contemplates the use of his coil system for parallel processing methods. See Fig.11 and col. 8 lines 56-64.

5. The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure. Boskamp et al. and Sementchenko disclose MRI coil systems for vertical field magnets. Note the abstract of each disclosure.
